

OLYMPIC VICTORS COMING TO CAPITAL POLICE CARNIVAL

J. J. Eller, Champion Hurdler,
Preparing Field for Athletic Meet Tomorrow.

217 ATHLETES TAKE PART

Patrick McDonald and Egon
Erickson Expected Today.
McGrath May Be Here.

John J. Eller, the Olympic hurdler and national champion, started work this morning at the American League Park, with Dr. Robert L. Eller and Melvin C. Hazen, to lay out the field for the police athletic carnival, to be held tomorrow.

Eller arrived in Washington today from New York, and immediately reported to Major Raymond Pullman, Dr. Eller, of this city, the athlete's brother, and Melvin Hazen, who is to be one of the judges of the field events, then took Eller in tow and he was detailed to superintend the laying out of the grounds. Despite the drizzle of rain, the work was started and good progress was made.

Eller, who is a member of the New York police department detachment of Olympic winners, told Major Pullman on his arrival this morning that Patrick McDonald, the Olympic shot-put champion, and Egon Erickson, the Olympic high jumper, and former A. T. U. champion, would be in Washington this afternoon. They all are members of the New York police athletic team. Eller also said that Matt McGrath, the great shot-put champion and Olympic hero, who has been in the hospital, was discharged yesterday and had stated that if he could make the trip he would be here tomorrow to help with the police games.

217 Athletes Entered.
Two hundred and seventeen athletes, representing the Police Department, the District government, and the Federal service, have been entered in the various events of the meet.

The program, which was officially approved yesterday, announces the complete list of events and starters as well as officials of the meet. The officials will be:

Honorary referees, Edwin C. Brandenberg, Daniel Callahan, James P. Oyler, Cuno H. Rudolph, P. T. McLean, Ross P. Andrews, William F. Gude, and Phil King; referee, Latrobe Cogswell, president South Atlantic division, Amateur Athletic Union; director of games, Dr. Robert L. Eller; starter, James F. Mulligan, clerk of course, Dr. F. E. Larkin; assistant clerks of course, R. A. Maurer and W. A. Rogers; judges of running events, William Foley, Newton Brewer, Logan Owens, and John D. O'Reilly; judges of field events, Melvin C. Hazen, Robert Barr, W. C. Thatcher, Brent Young, Brooks Brewer, Charles Cox, and Clarence Hecco; referee of wrestling, Patrick O'Connor; timers, Capt. M. A. Hazen, U. S. A. Charles King, C. E. Beckett, and Maurice Joyce; announcer, William Betts.

Program as Approved.
The program includes sprints at 75 and 100 yards, with trial events; shot-put and broad jump, and tug of war.

After the trial heats for the 200-yard dash, a wrestling exhibition between "Dolly" Gray, night clerk at No. 1 station, and W. M. Dunaway, of No. 1 precinct, will be staged. There will then be trials for the hop, step, and jump event, followed by an exhibition from one of the Olympic stars, and finally will be the great event of the 220-yard dash, shot-put, broad jump, and hop, step, and jump. A no-huddle race will follow, after which semi-finals in the tug of war will be staged. The Federal jump, and the race will follow, and by the police relay race, will come next.

A half-mile walk, a quarter-mile run, and a wrestling match between Joe Grant, of the detective bureau, and Joe Turner, famous as a middle-weight wrestler, will follow. The last event is a consolation race for non-winners.

The prizes include cups, trophies, medals of gold, silver, and bronze for teams and individuals, and, in addition, dozens of useful articles given by merchants and institutions of the District.

Some of the prizes, which passed through the hands of Edwin Brooks, of the citizens' committee, were donated by Rudolph & West Company, National Electric Supply Company, Martha Washington Candy Company, E. F. Brooks Company, E. H. Goldberger, James B. Lambie & Co., Saks & Co., Huyler's, Joseph Straubinger, Henry France & Son, George C. Shaffer, The Irish Goldenberg's, Washington Times, R. Big Demand for Seats.
The sale of seats for the athletic meet has resulted in a big demand according to Major Pullman. The prices of seats have been fixed at 50 cents for the stands and $1.50 for seats in the boxes. While many of the boxes have been sold at auction there still remain a few desirable box seats that may be had from the committee. All remaining unsold tomorrow morning will be placed on sale at the park.

Illinois Militia Officers Face an Investigation

The War Department will issue orders today returning Captains Laas and Waller, of the First and Second Illinois National Guard, to Fort Sam Houston for investigation as to disappearance of fifty-four horses intimated to their commands and missing when they were recently ordered home from the border. War Department officials are confident no moral turpitude is involved, and that the officers' offense is one carelessness in intrusting care of Government property to subordinate officers. Whether the investigation will be by court-martial or other means, is left for General Funston to decide.

Swimming Club Members Organize to Defy Ice Water at Municipal Beach.

Washington's class of "polar bear" swimmers, who will defy the icy waters of the Municipal Bathing Beach by taking dips throughout the winter, was organized at the annual meeting of the Washington Swimming Club at Krazy Kamp boathouse last night.

Between twenty-five and thirty members of the club declared themselves "bears," and announced their determination to try the winter swims. Polar bear swimming is becoming popular in a number of Eastern cities, but was never tried here before.

Policeman F. J. Brinner, a member of the club who will head the "bears," said this morning they will begin early next week. If the necessary permission to use the Municipal pools is granted by the Commissioners, the application is now under consideration.

The club voted to admit women, and elected one of the fair sex a vice president of the club to head a women's section. The following officers were elected:

Reginald Rutherford, president; F. C. Bauman, first vice president; G. B. Dickson, second vice president; Miss Phoebe Preston, third vice president; J. W. Surich, secretary-treasurer; R. O. Ellison, team captain; Policeman F. J. Brinner, coach.

Major Raymond W. Pullman, Superintendent of Police, was made an honorary member of the club in recognition of his support of the life-saving movement.
